On Monday 21 March, the ATM is launching the T-joc, an interactive competition for the public, as part of the ATM's 25th anniversary celebrations. The aim of the initiative is to use a web app to provide information on the history of the metropolitan public transport as well as on technical aspects and trivia facts, and to award prizes to those most knowledgeable about this topic.

1 prize a month for 5 months

The T-joc will consist of 5 games (between March and July) and each of them will be played for just one week a month (from Monday to Friday). Each game will consist of 3 daily questions to be answered before midnight. The correct answers will be published the following day and the score and ranking will be available for consultation. In this case, the speed of the answer will be taken into account in the scoring.

THE PRIZES

The winners will receive a free one-year integrated public transport travelcard

Each game will end at the end of the month with the counting of the scores. Each month there will be one winner who will then not be eligible for a prize in any other game, but will be eligible for a final prize.

Those who play all 5 games will be eligible for the prize for the highest accumulated score from all these games, even if they did not win any of them outright. If this happens, they will be awarded the same prize as a person who wins a single game; in other words, a free one-year integrated public transport travelcard. If, on the other hand, they have already won one of the 5 games, the prize for the best overall score will be a special mention.
